

CAOHC- Approved Occupational Hearing Conservationist Recertification Course

Online: Sept 18

Onsite: Davenport, IA Sept 19 or Altoona, IA Sept 20

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE: This course is designed to provide a review of the basic components of hearing conservation in industrial settings and prepare participants to continue performing hearing testing and otherwise support their hearing conservation programs.

This hybrid course provides online instruction via Zoom, and a face-to-face day of hands-on, practical training. At the conclusion of the hands-on day, students will take the standardized CAOHC recertification exam online.

OBJECTIVES

Upon course completion, participants will be able to:

1. Describe the responsibilities and scope of practice of Occupational Hearing Conservationists.
2. Identify parts of audiometric equipment, maintenance, calibration requirements, and potential issues with equipment or testing environment.
3. Administer pure tone air conduction audiometric tests, compliant with federal standards.
4. Manage special issues in hearing conservation.
5. Identify types and causes of hearing loss, and bases for appropriate review and referral.
6. Discuss federal and state regulations regarding hearing conservation.
7. Identify hearing protection device types, and describe purposes, fitting, maintenance, and efficacy.
8. Discuss requirements for hearing conservation education, and ways of improving motivation.
9. Identify necessary record-keeping for compliance with regulations and for best practice.

Additional resources:

CAOHC offers both a Hearing Conservation Manual and a Study Guide for students. While class notes and presentations are designed to comprehensively cover hearing conservation in preparation for the exam, students may benefit from supplementing their course experience with one or both of these resources.

The CAOHC materials are available for order at: <http://www.caohc.org/educational-resources>

These materials can also be ordered through the course director (see registration form) to take advantage of the course director discount. Ordered materials will be sent out with course notes in advance of the class.

Educational Credit:

This course has been approved by Des Moines Area Community College - DMAACC IBON Provider #22 for 8.0 Nursing Contact Hours. Contact Hours will only be awarded for full attendance on all days, no partial credit will be awarded. It is the licensee's responsibility to determine if the continuing education they attend meet the requirements of their professional board.

About the instructor:

The course director is Laura Kauth, M.A., CPS/A. Laura has taught CAOHC courses since 2001 through the University of Iowa, the Iowa-Illinois Safety Council, and independently. She is an active member of the National Hearing Conservation Association, serving as President of that organization in 2012-2013. With 20 years of experience in hearing conservation, Laura is committed to the effective prevention of hearing loss, and encourages students to consider her an ongoing resource in this important area of occupational health.
